3 Read the following text, then answer the questions:

Teenage years are the most important times of our lives. While there is excitement, they also go through different problems at home as well as school. There are different problems a teenager faces at school. To name a few are bullying and competition. Some teenagers have a sense of excellence in themselves, so always focus on the weakest amongst them and annoy them. Moreover, this plants fear in younger minds. Furthermore, the rising level of education has pressure on the youth to stay a step ahead of everyone.

On the other hand, the pressure and expectations from parents towards their children lead to stress and anxiety. For example, not being able to share their problems with their parents or friends makes them more disappointed. Furthermore, many parents fail to understand the condition of the child.

However, certain measures can be taken to solve these problems. For example, students at school and colleges are watched, as well as necessary actions are taken up against bullying. Additionally, parents should spend more time with their teenage child. Understanding and guiding them would be extremely helpful in such situations.

A funny thing happened when I was out with my friends. It was Saturday night and we were walking for an hour looking for a place to eat. Everything looked to be normal, but suddenly something happened. A strange man dressed in strange bright clothes turned the corner and ran to us. "I've been looking for you, boys," he said "I've come to the past to warn you, I'm a time traveller. You must know the truth before it's too late." We looked at each other, nobody knew what to say. We were frightened, but we kept listening to him. "This information will change your life forever! And the thing is ..."

Somebody shouted, "There you are!"

We saw a police officer running from the same corner. He put handcuffs on the man before he could escape. The officer said sorry to us for what happened. He explained that the man had been walking through the entire city making jokes and scaring people. He apologised again and then both went away.

Finally we kept walking and we found a café called "Future". We spent all the night laughing and talking about this funny and strange experience.

As you think about the poor, how can you help them? It is true that a person alone cannot solve the needs of the world. But we can do something together. Well, there are few teenagers that think they don't have money or the right things for helping the poor. How can they help a needy? You must know there are many ways of doing that.

Give some money every week to the poor. If you have less money, you can save some amount of money that you spend on eating at work or school. You can give the saved money to any Sadaqa or Zakat committee of the mosque or any poor person in your neighbourhood.

Organise a family charity project. Call upon a family meeting and discuss the ideas. Then come to an agreement as to how everyone can help the poor. Collect some money in a week as a group with father for giving it to poor people. You can set up a box in the house where the family donate. You can also donate clothes. You can help them through organizations.

The Aswan Botanical Garden is home to thousands of birds and many plants come from many parts of the world like Far East India and Africa. The Aswan Botanical Garden offers a beautiful escape from the city. It's on Kitchener's Island, to the west of Elephantine Island. It's one of two islands in the Nile to the city-centre of Aswan Egypt. The Aswan Botanical Island is divided into 27 squares which look like a chess board. A number of rare palm trees can be found there on the Island.

The only way to reach the Aswan Botanical Garden is by boat, either on one of the public ferries or by felucca tour while sightseeing this beautiful part of the Nile River. The Kitchener's island has three entrances. The main entrance of the Island is on the northern end of the island. The best way to see the whole island, without having to walk a lot, is to enter the main entrance and walk the full length of the island until you reach the southern end; book a felucca from there and ask the captain to wait for you at the other end.

I prepared for the journey for the whole month and had the hopes of joining other fans in watching the World Cup. After winning a ticket from the national radio station, I was ready to pick the ticket and prepare for the next day's flight to Germany. The journey started well but ended badly. The sick woman who joined the vehicle made me understand the meaning of the proverb that says; "Do not judge a book by its cover."

The journey started at seven in the morning. I took a bus to the town where I would collect the ticket, spend the night and fly to Germany the next day. I sat next to a window and watched the trees move quickly. Everyone was comfortable with the speed, but I wished the driver went faster so that I could get my ticket. Suddenly a woman appeared from a nearby hotel and waved at the driver. She looked sick, so we told the driver to stop and pick her. Everyone wanted to help her and give her a seat. After a couple of minutes, the woman stood up and removed her jacket and everything changed. I saw a man with a knife and took our money. He told us all to get off the bus. While younger children need their parents to be in the lead, teenagers need you to be by their side. When it comes to dealing with teenagers, we may use much of the same skills as we did when they were younger. These include being encouraging and enabling, allowing children to learn from their mistakes rather than 'showing them how to do it', accepting they might do it differently from you, and respecting their choices. All of us need to feel safe and protected.

3 Read the following text, then answer the questions:

Mindfulness means paying full attention to something. It means slowing down to really notice what you're doing. When you're mindful, you're taking your time. You're focusing in a relaxed, easy way. You need to practise mindfulness to get good at it. Training the mind takes practice. The more you practise, the better you get. If you practise mindfulness exercises, being mindful can come naturally when you need it in your everyday life. This can help when you're stressed when you have to do something difficult, or when you have to focus your attention. It's a lot like learning to play the piano. Each time you practise, you're training yourself to play a little bit better. When you practise mindfulness, you're training your attention. It's easy to do, and it just takes a few minutes a day.

Sit in a relaxed, comfortable position. Pick something to focus your attention on, like a word you repeat in your head or your breathing. There are lots of other ways to practise mindfulness, like eating mindfully or even mindful walking. Try picking different things to focus on to help you practise training your attention.

Sometimes it is clear when someone is going through a hard time, but there is no simple way of knowing if they have mental health problems. Sometimes you don't need to know. It's important to respond sensitively to someone who seems troubled. Although certain problems are common with mental health problems, no two people behave in exactly the same way when they are unwell. If you know the person well, you may notice changes in their behaviour or mood.

There are a number of ways you can help a friend or relative who has a mental health problem. If you are worried about someone it can be difficult to know what to do. When you know there is a problem, it is important not to wait. Waiting and hoping they will come to you for help might lose valuable time in getting them support.

Talking to someone is often the first step to take when you know they are going through a hard time. This way you can find out what is troubling them and what you can do to help.

A) Choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Many laugh at the common saying, "The Egyptian child is the smartest," but, seeing the many examples of genius Egyptians, some might think again. Among the many examples is the Egyptian student Yasmine Yehia Mustafa. Her fantastic achievements, her skills from a young age, as well as the challenging conditions she grew up in, are just part of her story.

Back in 2015, Yasmine came first in the "Intel Science and Engineering Competition," in the Earth and Environmental Sciences category, with her project

"The Potential Strength of Rice Straw." There were 1,700 competitors from more than 87 countries. Yasmine was the only Arab girl to receive such an award since it began many years ago.

Yasmine, (now 23 years old), comes from a simple family in the village of Kafr Al-Manazila, in Damietta. She lost her father when she was young. Yasmine was able to excel, topping her class throughout her school years, becoming fond of scientific researches. She joined the Schools of Outstanding Students in Science and Technology in Maadi, now she studies petroleum engineering at the Middle East Technical University in Northern Cyprus.

An online community is no different than any other community except for the fact it's online. It is a group of people with something in common, which could include shared interests, experiences, ideas and goals. An online community is also known as a "Market Research Online Community" (or MROC) where a group of people is asked about their opinions, ideas and feedback about a product, service or any topic of interest. It's really important to realise that a community is about people and not about platforms in the first place. These communities can partially mix with offline communities. Your community of Twitter followers, for example, can include friends, family members, colleagues and customers.

You can benefit from online communities in many ways. They provide ideas in customers' preferences and needs, can increase customer information, improve quality and thought leadership, decrease support costs and allow more ways of working.

On the other hand, online communities almost depend on inputting text which can be challenging for those who can't write, can't spell, don't like to write, have poor keyboard skills, have no access to a keyboard, live with a disability that prevents them from reading text and using a keyboard.

Planning a great community service project doesn't need a lot of work. There are many ways you can improve your community with groups, big or small. Collecting food is the main one. Contact your local food bank and they will provide you with the necessary information and materials to have a food drive. Encourage people to donate their favourite food items. Starting a recycling programme is a big task. When you recycle, those items can be turned into amazing things. A community garden is a great way to communicate with your community and provide healthy food. Think of making a garden just for children, so they can learn about the process of gardening. A community clean up will improve the look of your neighbourhood or park and encourage people to keep the space looking great. Donating blood can also help the community. It helps save many lives. Giving new coats to kids in need is a great way to serve your community. You select the school, and hand out the new coats. Volunteering is a great experience that brings people of all ages together for a good cause.
